Was called upon, but happened to be out.
From a previous interview the information was obtained that Mr. Young has in hand the building of a large three-story brick business block, on the corner of Main and Fourth streets. It will be a very extensive structure, with long frontage on both Main and Fourth. The cost is estimated at about $60,000. It will be for business rooms and lodging-house. R. B. Young

It will be for business rooms and lodging-house. R. B. Young has in hand the plans for a large frame lodging-house, to be built for Mr. Mattheson, on the corner of First and Olive streets. It is to contain sixty rooms. Also the plans for a residence for C. Brody, to cost $2800. It will be built by J. H. Linkletter. Mr. Reeves refused the reporter information for want of time. He stated, however, that the Phillip block, on the corner of Spring and Franklin streets, would, no doubt, be extended to New High. This will make its frontage on three streets, and increase the cost from $155,000 to about $250,000, and make it one of the finest blocks in the city. DECORATION DAY.

The Programmes to Be Observed—Composition of the Columns.

This is the day set apart and sanctioned by law for commemorating the death of those who perished in their country's cause. It will be observed all through the land, from North to South and East to West. It from North to South and East to West. It will bring to mind many sad and yet Joyous memories. It is fitting that men in the busy rush of life should for one day lay aside the cares of other days and remember those who have died to save the nation. The programmes of the day were published in THE TIMES yesterday morning, but many will took in the papers this morning for information, and hence it is here again given. The formation and order of march will be as follows:

Organizations taking part in the procession will form in the following order:

Companies A and C of the Seventh Infantry Battalion, N. G. C., Maj. W. H. H. Russell commanding, on South Main street, right resting on First.

Frank Bartlett Post, No. 6, L. S. Butler commanding, on east side of South Main, right on First.

The Future Harbor of Southern California.

THIS IS THE OCEAN TERMINUS OF THE CALIFORNIA CENTRAL RAILROAD, OF THE ATCH-son, Topeka and Santa Fé system, who are under contract to lay five miles of sidetracks at this point by July 10, 1887—the shortest railroad line between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. PORT BALLONA is situated on Santa Monica Bay, only thirty minutes' ride by rail from the City of Los Angeles, with trains to begin running every three hours in the day early in July.

Property can be purchased now at a much lower figure than when railroads and steamships are brought together. PORT BALLONA has two main avenues, one 100 feet and one 80 feet. Wide, with all other streets 60 feet. Residence lots are 40x150, and business lots 25x100 and 25x150 feet. The residence property is at an elevation of from 50 to 75 feet above tide-water, thus affording a most magnificent view, extending from Point Duma to the San Jacinto Mountains, and from the San Bernardino Mountains to Santa Catalina Island, in the Blue Pacific, and with a Beach unsurpassed on the Coast.

Great Credit Sale of Lots in France offers great encouragement to poultry fatteners at its annual exhibitions held in the spring of every year, and the French peasants have deservedly acquired the reputation of producing the best table fowls. However, poultry are not fattened in France in very large numbers together. As a matter of fact, the poultry fatteners of France are the wives of the peasantry, and only keep a comparatively small number of fowls each. Some of these they rear, but for the most part they buy the chickens when nearly ready for fattening from those of their neighbors who devote their attention to rearing and not to fattening.

In the Houdan market it is but rarely that more than twenty birds are offered by any one wender. The majority of the table poultry of France is cross-bred and not pure-bred.

The food chiefly used in France is one-half barley meal, one-fourth Indian corn meal, and one-fourth buckwheat meal, with the addition of more or less milk. The birds are crammed in two ways, chiefly by making the foods into pellets about one and one-half inches long and three-quarters of an inch in diameter. In making the mixture for these pellets, water is used in just sufficient quantity to cause the meal to adhere together; and each pellet is dipped in milk before being inserted into the bird's mouth.

The operator sits down, catches hold in milk before being inserted into the bird's mouth. The operator sits down, catches hold of the bird's legs between his or her knees, holds the bird's mouth open with the left hand, and puts in the pellet with the right, afterward using the forefinger and the thumb of the right hand outside the bird's throat to gently press the pellet down into the crop. A little experience renders it easy to ascertain when the bird has had sufficient food. The crop should be just filled without being unduly distended, and the quantity given should be less for the first few days, and gradually increased.

The other method, which is chiefly in use in the La Fièche district, is by inserting a funnel with a rounded nozzle, or one covered with rubber, down the bird's threat, which is held in much the same way as when being fed by pellets. A ladleful of the mixture is poured into the funnel and runs at once into the bird's crop. The mixture is in this case necessarily more fluid in character, and is brought to the required thinness by adding milk.

In Surrey and Sussex, England, the methods adopted by poultry fatteners are somewhat similar to those in use in France. The Sussex cramming machine can be best described as consisting of an iron cylinder, not unlike a thin cannon or bomb, with piston-rod working in it, and capable of being forced into it by a system of cog-wheels. At the end of the crammer opposite the piston-rod is a funnel-shaped opening, to which is attached an india-rubber tube. The tube is insperted into the bird's throat when it is being fed, and a turn of the handle forces sufficient food instaneously into the crop. The machine is worked by two men, one of whom takes the birds from the pens and insert's the tube into their mouths, while the other turns the handle which forces the food into the crop. Stilled feeders have been known to cram as many as thirty dozen chickens in an hour, but twenty dozen is reckoned good average work. The man who holds the fowl keeps one hand on its crop and directs the other feeder as to the quantity to be given.

The food chiefly used in Sussex is ground oats. The husk is not removed, but husk and grain are ground together as finely as possible. The Sussex ground oats is mixed with milk, or with gruel made from flour, and when ready for use is of such a consistency as may be driven easily through the cramming machine. During the last week of the fattening process, which usually occapies three weeks in all, mutton suct is added to the food in the proportion of twenty-four pounds of suct to 120 pounds of meal.

There is a large fattening establishment in Sussex, England, brave soldiers who are no longer pon earth. It is a just and a fitting ibute, this festival of sadness, when y common consent and under legal by common consent and under legal sanction we join to revive the memory of their courageous deeds, and hring flowers to strew upon their graves. They made the supreme sacrifice of nature—they gave their lives, their all, that their country might live. The only return that can be made in this vorl l is that their country preserve for them a deathless memory.

All over the land services will be held today for this purpose, and the surviving veterans, whose ranks are thinner and thinner as the years roll by, will join with the men nd women of the rising generation in tributes of remembrance and love.

It is good to tell of the acts of valo which those men performed; it is good to recount their names and recall their hardships and sacrifices; it is good to pull the freshest and fairest flowers, and wreathe them upon the mounds that mark the resting places of our departed heroes. Seeing these things, the men of today who were not in the strife, but who enjoy the lasting fruits of it, the youth who are approaching manhood's estate, and the boys who will make the men of the future, must be impressed with the thought that it is great and glorious to love one's country, and to lay down his life for it when duty demands the sacrifice.

This is the highest patriotism. This is the rock upon which is founded the stability and perpetuity of our Government, and the preservation of liberty in America. Let the example and precept pass from sire to son through all enerations of American freemen As long as we continue to honor our patriot dead the nation shall live.

He perished, but his wreath was won-He perished in his height of fame;
His country conquered in his name.
Filled with his soul, she could not die;
Her conquest was posterity.

That was a strong sermon which Dr. antine, of the Fort-street Methodist Church, preached before the Grand Army veterans and his congregation yesterday morning. Yet it was not exactly a memorial sermon. Leaving to others the task of reviewing the he roic struggles and sacrifices and the noble achievements of the war, and referring, in a brief eulogy, to the memory of the noble dead, he addressed himself to the living. "I take it for granted," he said, "that you of this udience who fought for the perpetuity of this Government in the dark days are willing to live for the Government today." And then he delivered a discourse on present issues which should stir the heart of every patriot.

We have long thought that if preach ers generally would follow Longfellow's advice and "Let the dead past bury its dead," historically, theologically and metaphysically, devoting their efforts more to awakening the thoughts and quickening the consciences of their hearers on questions of duty to be decided by them from day to day, the preachers would preach less to empty enches and would wield a far greate influence in the land. Men and women look to their pastors not so much for instruction as for sound moral advice and how is advice to benefit them unless it refers to something which they are to do or not to do?

Dr. Cantine's discourse is presented in extenso in other columns of today's TIMES. It is worthy a perusal by every thoughtful and conscientious citizen. Especially should it be studied by young men who are newly facing po litical responsibilities, and who cannot be too thoroughly warned of the evils which the pastor sets forth as threatening our nation. The dangers of criminal and pauper immigration from the Old World are strongly drawn. Contrasting the check which has been given to Chinese immigration with the latitude allowed immigration from the other side of the world, he iraws this strong simile: scuttle in the roof to keep out an offending sparrow, and leave open and unguarded the broad front door to s hungry and malignant mob, is not, in stimation, good statesmanship. It is little wonder that the assembled congregation, breaking over the conventionalities of church service, applauded this sentiment to the echo. We do not understand that Dr. Cantine indorses Chinese immigration as an unmixed good, but that he considers, it "an offending sparrow" compared with the evil influences which are invading this country from the Political corruption Dr. Cantine con siders another arch enemy to our institutions, and a tendency toward skepticism is a third menace. This article is not designed as a digest of the sermon referred to, but merely to call attention to its strong points. A full perusal is commended to those who wish to read a logical. cisive and fearless discourse.

A Thunderstorm

A cloudy sky and a sultry atmosphere, with the climax of a down-East thunderstorm in the afternoon, was the eccentric feature of yesterday's weather. There was real forked and chain lightning playing about the heavens, and flashes of fire toyed with some of the electric-light masts, while a ball of green mischief ran up the wire to Fort-street hill and rang the fire-alarm bell. There used to be people in Los Angeles—born and raised on this coast— who were wont to claim that they had never heard thunder or seen lightning; but a few years ago nature made a diversion in their favor, and they have not been so thunderingly ignorant the been so thinderingly ignorated nee. Electric storms, more or less onounced, have occurred at long invals during five or six summers past, d they are now considered out of the ney are now considered out of the the year. Boys and girls now growing up in Los Angeles may live to see the day when Fourth-of-July picnics will be just as likely to be rained on here as they are in the States beyond the great divide.

Clumsy Statistics.

When the reporters attached to the daily press of Los Angeles think it is time to impart some information as to the progress which this city is making in buildings, they go skurrying around among the architects and collect such data as they find available. Their work is necessarily hurried and superficial. They visit half a dozen out of the twenty or more offices and obtain such points about the more important build-ings in hand or contemplated as the owners or architects are willing to disnot too reliable information is given in the best form possible for a hurried article, and from it the public gain a fragmentary knowledge of the city's improvements. Of the large number of less pretentious structures which are not placed in the hands of the architects at all there is absolutely no information. How unsatisfactory these partial and irregular reports are nobody appreciates more thoroughly than the newsciates and irregular reports are nobody appreciates more thoroughly than the newsciates more than the newsciates more than the newsciates more thoroug close. This incomplete and sometimes not too reliable information is given in paper men themselves, but no better sources of information are available for them, and they simply do the best they can. What an improvement over this helter-skelter process it would be if the city had an officer whose duty should be to keep statistics of buildings a permit being required from white helter in the strong and quivering limb with a burning pain as of molten fre, while the brain reels and eye grows dim. should be to keep statistics of buildings, a permit being required from him before the erection of any house is allowed! Then we should have statistics, full and reliable, and the public could contemplate the growth of Los Angeles with some degree of LUCKY BALDWIN has filed an affidavit on his application for a new trial in the Perkins-Baldwin breach-ofpromise case, in which he alleges that the former trial went against him, and he was mulcted to the tune of $75,000 by reason of the efforts of THE TIMES, and especially by a paper called the Porcupine." This is pretty rough. They brought him to his childhood's home. Porcupine." Not long ago the Porcupine declared that THE TIMES was in the hire if not absolutely owned by Baldwin, and now Baldwin himself turns upon us. So we are between two fires. By publishing the most accurate and complete reports of the great trial we got ourselves disliked by people on both sides of the question. But then there was so much to tell!

Look backward with me o'er the hurried yet. Whispers breathe in the balmy air. Of a bright-spring morn, till gathering ton They fall at last on the startled ear: "Another battle." Be pitful, God: Over the heart creeps a deathly chill, And the very air seems filled with a moan. As its pulses quiver and thrill.

A hush like that ominous, breathless Ere thunder breaks with crashing pea. Hurling its bolts, and the forest king Feels in its heart the lightning's steel. Through the giad spring day and starlit I sit with tearless eyes and wait: Upon whom will it fall, the cruel bolt Thrown by the merciless hand of fate?

They draped around the faded form
The starry flag he loved;
If aught could call the life-tide back,
His pulses then had moved. But Death had laid his marble hand Upon the cheek of snow, And stilled the golden curls that lay Above the broad, white brow—

With chilling touch had closed the lid Over the proud, blue eye. And breathed upon the perfect lip The blasting of his sigh.

On many a fearful battlefield, 'Mid storm of shot and shell, He dauntless stood, the last to yield, And like a hero fell.

The rose and illy wreath
To place with tear-dimmed eyes above
The sacred dust beneath. So young, so beautiful, so brave;

Strew roses o'er his breast, And bid old ocean's restiess wave Break not the soldier's rest; And weave a fadeless laurel wreath, Bound fast with deathless love, For the brave heart that's dust beneath,

And the true soul above Our native robin softly sings

My changeless love on spirit wings
Flies over time and space— Bends low beside the sacred mound

Albambra, May 80th. Eli Perkins in San Diego.

Eli Perkins in San Diego.

[San Diego News.]

The extravagant eulogy of Eli Perkins in the Bee of yesterday was laughable. For grandlloquent sky-scraping panegyric it climbs over anything Perk himself ever did. Just listen to the buzzing of the Bee:

"This divinely-gifted man, this incomparable wit, this natural genius, utterly defies description."

You bet he does!

"One can no more resist this mysterious, God-like power and apprehension than the bright-winged humming birg can save itself from the charm of the golden-ringed, diamond-eyed snake."

Bully for the snake!

"As well seek to rule the condor's glorious flight, tear the soul of color from the flower, drink the boundless sea, enchain the meteor's glancing light, or prison fast the firefly's flickering luminance!"

Bully for the firefly!

"There is no one like him; there never has been. He will never have a successful imitator."

No, for Eli wears the bett as the greatest living liar.

"He is not Shakespeare, Dickens, Byron, Voltaire, Moliere, Clemens, Nye, nor Burns, but a complement of them all."

Poor old Shakespeare et al.

"Ah, money cannot buy, gold-can never touch the lofty character of this genius—its purpling wine of dazzling wit and crystal champagne of overbubbling joy!"

Ah! perhaps it was the champagne, or Eli and the champagne together, that made the Bee overbubble. [San Diego News.]

A Bad Case.

Yesterday afternoon the police station was informed that a man was making himself very noisy on Downey avenue, East Los Angeles. Officer Jackson went over and found one Jack Redding making a nuisance of himself by cursing and blackguarding passers by. He was brought to the station in a back, and booked for drunk and disorderly. It is said that this man was formerly a preacher, until drink got the best of him.

Spectacie of a Thunderstorm.
Testerday was rather warm and close, though the thermometer did not reach 80° in the shade. About noon a few clouds began to skip across the ethereal dome, and about a o'clock a very light shower fell on the hil west of New High street. An hour or two later the sky became entirely overcast and at 6 o'clock sharp flashes of lightning were seen in the direction of San Pedro. The distant rumble of thunder was heard and by 6:20° clock the wetness had reached the city and a smart shower of rain was falling, accompanied by some sharp chain lightning and very respectable thunder. It reminded Easterners of "the States" and, though there was no seeking of city and a smart shower of rain was falling, accompanied by some sharp chain lightning and very respectable thunder. It reminded Easterners of "the States" and, though there was no seeking of celiars in fear of a cyclone, some ladies were seen tripping along Hill street at a lively rate, and covering their heads every time a sharp flash occurred. A lady, looking from a window, saw a bluish-colored something flash along the wire leading to the fire-bell on First-street hill, and the same instant the bell sounded loud and clear. A Times reporter also observed the electricity playing around one of the electric-light masts.

The shower lasted for an bour or more, and the sky remained overcast for some time thereafter.

All the electric lights were turned off for a short time and telephonic communication was cut off, as the atmospheric electricity was in too playful a mood for the wires.

AT THE SYNAGOGUE.

tabbi Schreiber on Judaism and Christianity.

The Synagogue was yesterday beautifully decorated and crowded to its utmost capacity by Iraelites and Gentiles. The musical exercises, conducted by Prof. Loeb and Mrs. Beeson, Mrs. B. Meroy, Mr. Fanning and Mr. Laube, were artistically rendered. Rev. D. Schreiber's sermon on "The Position of Modern Judaism Toward the Religious Struggle of the Day" was a dered. Rev. D. Schreiber's sermon on "The Position of Modern Judaism Toward the Religious Struggle of the Day" was a highly instructive and philosophical analysis of the relation of Judaism to the more important dogmas and doctrines of Christianity, and the reasons why they are contested. The Doctor saw in the religious struggle of the day, and in the attempts to liberalize the churches, a return of the daugh in Christianity to the mother Judaism. Theirtuggle within Christianity is against those parts which were accepted by the Apostle Paulus and his school from heathenistic paganism, in order to make Judaism more palatable to the heathens. These were the doctrines of a Trinity: "Vicarious atonement," "mediatorship," is alvation by faith, "and others. Now, modern Judaism urges absolute unity of God. Every man can be his own savior by repairing what he has destroyed. Deeds are of more importance than creeds. Humanity and the supremacy of the moral law are the ideal of the Jewish religion. All workers in this cause are returning to Judaism. Hence the mission of Judaism is not ended yet.

After the impressive discourse Master Harry Harris, son of L. Harris, made a very able address, and was confirmed by the Rabbi.

Coroner Meredith, who went out last Friday with the object of going into the mountains to hold an inquest, got as far as Mrs. Dunks's place, at the foot of the mountains, where he met Capt. Moore and party, who had just returned. They stated that it would require at least ten days to bring the body out from the mountain fastness where it was found. In view of all the circumstances the Coroner advised that the body be buried where it was found and that the inquest be waived. Capt. Moore and his men were worn out with their rough journey, but expected to start back into the mountains Saturday afternoon.

HORSEBACK WRESTLING. The Novel Entertainment at Santa

Monica Yesterday.

The horseback wrestling contest between Davis and Matthews at Santa Monica yesterday was witnessed by about 1000 people. The contest was very exciting and brought forth a great deal of applause. Constable Ed Smith was chosen referee, and when the champions mounted their mustangs a perfect quiet held the audience down. The match was for the best two in three for a purse of $500. Davis won the first fall, by jumping on Matthews' horse, and both went to the ground together, with Davis on top. The next two falls were won by Matthews, and Smith declared him the winner of the contest thews, and Smith declared him the winner of the contest.

The audience were perfectly satisfied, with the wrestling, and were very enthusiastic when the champions announced that they were about to indulge in a friendly contest. This also was won by Matthews, and the day's sport was declared off.

In the last bout Dayis was quite badly hurt. He did not feel it much at first, but last night he was feeling very badly and had to go to bed. His friends think he was lurt inwardly.

THE SUICIDED SHOEMAKER.

Inquest Held on His Remains Yes-terday.

Coroner Meredith went to Pasadena yes-terday and held an inquest on the body of Robert Fryer, the man who committed sui-cide last Friday. Several witnesses were sworn, but no new facts were brought out. Alfred Ellis, who resided at the same house with Fryer, testified that the deceased did not come home for dinner and Mrs. Fryer asked him to go and look for her husband. He went to the house on which deceased war working, and after looking around found him under the floor and saw that he had cut his throat. Martin Lannon also went to look for deceased, and, found a shoemakers' knife by his side, under the house. They called a doctor at once, but he said the man could not live, and he died Friday afternoon. There was no evidence to show why the man committed the rash-deed, and the jury found that deceased came to his death by his own hand. sworn, but no new facts were brought out.

A Negro Convicted of Brutally Murdering His Wife.

BUTTE (Mont.), May 29.—[By the Associated Press.] Alexander Woods was yesterday found guilty of murder in the first degree at Blackfoot, Idaho. The trial lasted three days. The crime was most revolting. Woods is a burly negro and ran a barber shop at the Pacific Hotel at Pocatello. About three weeks ago he invited his wife to take a walk in the hills surrounding the railroad station. After proceeding a safe distance from habitation he killed her with some blunt instrument, and concealed the body in a ravine. He then stole two valuable horses from a neighboring ranch, hired an Indian guide and made his escape, but was captured five days after. Sentence will be passed on Thursday next and the execution will probably speedily follow. A Negro Convicted of Brutally Mur-

By Telegraph to The Times.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—[By the Associated Press.] The following is the weather-crop bulletin issued by the Signal Office to-day for the week ending May 28th:

Temperature—During the week ending May 28th the weather has been slightly warmer than usual in the Mississippl Valley, and thence westward to the Pacific coast, and from Southern New England westward over New York, Pennsylvania and Ohlo. The week has been slightly cooler than usual in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Virginia and the South Atlantic States, but in all agricultural districts east of the Rocky Mountains the average temperature in all agricultural districts east of the Rocky Mountains the average temperature for the week differs slightly from the normal. In Oregon, Washington Territory and Northern California the excess of temperature ranges from 25 to 50°. The season from January 1st to May 28th has been slightly warmer than usual in the grain and tobacco regions, while the average daily excess in the cotton region has been from 1.5° to 2°.

During the week the rainfall has been slightly in excess of the average in the cotton regions from Texas eastward to Georgia, and generally in New England, New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia. Frequent showers occurred in the corn and wheat regions, where the total rainfall for the week, although well-distributed, was slightly below the normal. Kansas has been favored by rainfalls in excess of the normal, especially in the western portions. Owing to the favorable distribution of the rainfall of the season, the deficiency of 10 to 15 inches appears, as yet, uninjurious in the cotton region. Throughout the entire agricultural districts the weather has proved especially favorable for growing crops, and reports on Sunday morning. May 20th, show that favorable conditions of rainfall and temperature yet continue, except in Michigan, Illinois and Southern Minnesota, where the needed showers are today predicted.

WINTER AND SPRING WHEAT. owers are today predicted.

WINTER AND SPRING WHEAT. CHICAGO, May 29.—This week the Farmers' Review will say: "Our reports this week indicate that local rains throughout week indicate that local rains throughout the Western States have more or less broken up the drouth. An improved condition of affairs in relation to the winter wheat crop is noticeable in Indiana and Ohlo, and while other States have suffered from lack of rain, it seems probable that should the present conditions continue, the damage will be less than anticipated. More rain is generally needed, except in the Southern States. Twenty-three counties in Illinois report the average condition of winter wheat at 83 per cent. Fourteen Indiana counties report an mesded, except in the Southern States. Twenty-three counties in Illinois report the average condition of winter wheat at 83 per cent. Fourteen Indiana counties report an average condition in winter wheat of 87 per cent. Eleven Ohio counties report an average condition above that of last week. Prospects for the crop are much better. The condition of winter wheat is placed at 88 per cent. In seven Michigan counties. Reports from Wisconsin this week give the condition of winter wheat in Missouri is promising. Ten counties in Kansas report the condition of winter wheat at 46 per cent. of the average. Complaints are numerous of drouth and bugs. Hall killed most of the crop in Clay county, May 22d. The condition of spring wheat in Minnesota is reported as good. Iowa promises to have good crop of spring wheat. Seven Nebraska counties report the condition of spring wheat in that State at an average of 91 per cent."

Its stones are discolored with the weather of two generations, and its massiveness makes it as gloomy as a tomb. The doors of the basement appear to be cut into the walls, and as you enter you feel as though you were going into a prison. Within you find your surroundings much like those of the catecombs, and the passages go in so many directions that one might easily get lost and wander for some time before finding his way out. Here one may find many strange things which the outside world never dreams of. He would see other industries going on than those of money making and money keeping, and he might study half a dozen trades in the lower basement, and have his meals served at the restaurant of this treasury city.

For the treasury is a city indeed. Its every part is honey combed with industry, and from basement to attic it is filled with strange characters and curious sights. In this letter I wish to treat of the attic alone. It is way put under the root, and it composes two acres of floor, upon which the feet of visitors rarely tread. Itsi lighted by little windows looking out of the deep walls, and it is cut up into rooms, halls and corridors, the most of which are packed with records and documents. All the papers relating to the treatury department during the past 100 years are carefully kept, and to-day as I walked through wall after wall of files it seemed to me that I covered miles in going up on also and down another. There were thousands of bank notes, millions of reports, and millions of accounts showing the labors of thousands, year after year, since the government was founded. As I looked at the toms of careful writing I could not help thinking of the brains and muscle represented by them. There is enough manuscript here, I should judge, to carpet the state of New York, and fully half of it is made up of figures. Every line of these millions upon millions of papers consumed a certain amount or muscle in its writing, and here is represented by the contraint of the country, also were granted are here. Of the lettors received and the stube of all the dopartment throughout its history are here properly indeed and half of the country, also the half to themselves, large enough almost for a basel all ground, and the walls or files in this hall contain 14,000 file horse. Two walls of illes contain the certificates of deposit of all the national banks of the country, also the important papers which make the assistant treasurers of the United States responsible for the millions of money which they receive. Here I met a little old man, who told man, who told man who have the contraint of the reason of the contray risk and as I locked on him I though the work of the millions of money which they receive there in the treasu

Oh, my boy! there is millions in it! there is millions in it! there is millions in it! there is millions as they do so. They are very expert, and can turn out many yaxls of carpet a day. As I entered he was stand-the top of a little miniature bake they had been experimentally sent by the publisher, and the whole first page was taken oven like furnace, and with a pair of tongs was moving about some thimble like pots of gold and silver which were steaming away within it. The furnace was not much bigger than a pasteboard shoe box, but it glowed with the heat of that furnace, which was heated seven times hotter than used to test the faith of the children of Israel. The asswer told me he was testing samples of an issue of 180,000 twenty dollar gold pieces, which were recently made by the New Orleans mint, and I watched him while he rolled a twenty dollar gold piece to the thinness of the finest needle. The moment the coins are issued these samples are sent to him. He rolls them out, melts them and tests their quality by means of chemicals. He can tell to the atom the amount of gold in a coin, and he also analyzes counterfect coins and gives their composition to the secret service bureau for aid in the detection of counterfeiters. The coins from the mint are sent in an envelope marked with the date of coinage and the number of thousands issued.

This is a new office, and it was established last November in accordance with the new olcomargarine law. Here all the bad butter and olcomargarine of the sountry is tested. It is sent in pound pieces by the internal revenue collectors throughout the United States. The chemist boils and cooks it here day after day, and seems to grow fat over it. The law had been changed and the treasury wanted to change some old stamps to correspond with it. They were doing this with haud stamps, and these stamps were operated "Yes," replied he, "I came in with Andrew Jackson as a messenger, and I have been here ever since. These fifty years I have grown gray in the treasury service, and now they talk of examining me to see whether I am fit to be here. But here my guide led me away, and I left the old clerk watching these hundreds of millions and paid perhaps a salary of $1,200 avear.

Speaking of the treasury clerks, they are much excited, as are indeed all clerks at Washington, about the new civil service rules, which provide that old clerks shall un-dergo civil service examinations. Many of them are studying their school text books, them are studying their school text books, and it looks rather queer to see a gray haired man or woman with a spelling book in their hands. It is rather ridiculous too sometimes: as for instance I am told that the most expert of the lady counters of the treasury—a woman who has a national reputation for accurately fingering a certain number of thousand bank notes in a day—is now engaged during all of her leisure time in studying geography.

He had used a barrel of papers, bought at the nearest postoffice, where they had been refused by the persons to whom they had been experimentally sent by the publisher, and the whole first page was taken up by a story, which broke off in the middle of a sentence at the foot of the last column, and tantalized us forever with fruitless conjecture as to the fate of the hero and heroine. I really suppose that a cheap wail paper could have been got for the same money, though it might not have seemed so economi-

BELLING PAPERS IN WAR TIMES UNDER DIFFICULTIES.

[Special Correspondence.]

MILWAUKEE, May 18.

An army newsboy.
The title seems a misnomer.
But it is not, as any old soldier with warm recollections of the pleasure brought by a paper in camp will attest.

The life of the army newsboy was nothing if not exciting. Oftentimes it was necessary for them to run the gauntiet of Confederate scouting parties in order to keep their customers supplied.

The most noted of the class was "Doc" Aubrey, of "the Iron Brigade," and who has the honor of being the only newsboy captured during the war. He was confined in Libby prison for six weeks and then released. At that time "Doc" was a harum scarum youngster of 15. He now resides in Milwaukee, and is one of the leading members of the Iron Brigade association. This brigade was composed of the Second, Sixth and Seventh Wisconsin, Nineteenth Indiana and Battery B. United States artillery. The Twenty-fourth Michigan was afterward added. The brigade was commanded by King, Merideth, Cutler, Gibbon and Bragg, all well known names. "Doc" attached himself to the brigade when the order was issued allowing only one newsboy to a division, for the reason that the Wisconsin troops were found to be the best customers, although he was by birth a "Greem Mountain boy" and had three brothers in a Vermont regiment.

He was captured soon after the battle of Antietam. After the review which inaugurated Burnside's succession to the command of the Arny of the Potomac, "Doc" thought he would attempt to reach Washington, thirty-one miles distant, and get back with supply of papers, none having been received in camp for some weeks.

The road was known to be beset with Confederate sconting parties, and he was promised capture before he started by some of the camp croakers. Paying no attention to their prophecies, the plucky newsboy mounted his horse and started.

The story of his after events is best told in his own words, as given in a recent interview with the writer.

"As I spoke I dived down under the papers and brought up a bottle of Mountain Dew, the sight of which made the trooper's eyes sparkle. The corporal drew his saber and with the point extracted the cork. I offered it to him first, but he waved it back, saying. 'Drink yourself first.'

"He thought it was drugged.
"Obeying commands, I took a swallow, and then both troopers took pulls at the bottle that brought tears into their eyes. After giving the liquor time to work I made another appeal for release, but it didn't work, and I was taken back to the picket reserve.

"On reaching camp I was quickly surrounded and relieved of my papers.

"And I did.

"An orderly sergeant was then detailed to take me over to Gen. J. E. B. Sturrt's headquarters at Warrenton. Gen. Stuart was just mounting to ride around the lines as we came up. He at once dismounted and returned to the veranda of the historical brick columned hotel and waited for the sergeant's report. The latter saluted, and said: 'General, here is a Yankee newsboy we have picked up.'

"Bring him inside,' replied Stuart, and I was led into the hotel. That was the only time I saw Stuart. The noted cavalry leader was at that time a fine looking man, though he looked better on horseback than when walking. He was short and rather stout, with a full, sandy red beard flowing down over his breast. He was very kind, and at the close of my examination, which included questions in regard to my trip and what I had seen, he put his hand reassuringly on my shoulder, and said: 'I believe you are what you say, a Green Mountain boy, and have told me the truth. Sergeant, take him with you to your quarters and see that he is provided for.'

"That ended the interview."

"That ended the interview.

"I followed the sergeant out on this, went to his quarters, tied my horse with his at the rail, and for the night was treated as a guest. The next morning, however, I was turned over to the guard, which was starting with forty or fifty prisoners for Richmond. We arrived there that afternoon and were marched at once to Libby prison.

"There I was confronted by Maj. Thomas P. Turner, who was in command of the prison, Maj. Turner asked me if I had any valuables. Now I did have, besides the $12 in Confederate money given me by the Heutenant, $380 in United States money. The latter sum I had taken with me from camp intending to send it home from Washington. This I was unable to do, as the express office was closed.

LOS ANGELES SUNDAY TIMES: MAY 99, 1887.—TEN PAGE.

"An hour or so after myself and sever's comrades managed to pass the guards and get across the river. I was drawn by a fascination I could not resist to where I saw the artilleryman trying to save his gun. There, lying behind it, I found a wounded gunner. He had been struck by a piece of a shell in the shoulder and was in great agony. I ran down to a well near by and hastily filled my canteen with fresh water. I gave him a drink and then tried to make him as comfortable as I could.

"Boy as I was I was much impressed with a remark he let fall while the cold sweat wrung by the terrible pain of his wound stood on his brow. I was bathing his shoulder in the best manner I could when he cried, 'Oh! I can't see why this thing couldn't be settled his brow. I was batting his shoulder in the best manner I could when he cried, 'Oh! I can't see why this thing couldn't be settled without—Oh—h!—resorting to this doz's way of fighting.' Foor fellow! I managed to find one of our ambulances and had him conveyed to the hospital. We exchanged cards and promised to correspond, but I lost the card and that was the last I ever heard of him His words, however, rang in my ears for many a day.

His words, however, rang in my ears for many a day.

"Did newsboys ever get under fire? Not if they could help it. I was under fire just once at Gettysburg, on the first day of the fight. We had not been able to get any papers for a week or more. I had been ahead with scouting parties all that time in hopes to meet one of the army agents maintained by all the leading papers in the field. But up to the morning the fight commenced I had been unsuccessful. That morning an agent arrived with a supply of Philadelphia and New York papers. Before I could get my order flied the battle had opened and the brigade was away up in front. So I went back with the headquarters teams and waited.

"After a time the firing ceased all along the line. I thought that would be a fine opportunity to sell out and get back before fighting commenced again. So, digging spurs into my borse, away I went on a sharp gaffor after the brigade. I found them in front of Campleiry of the Third State of the Campleir of the Third State of the Third Cemetery gate, standing at ease and waiting

"The minute I came up'they surrounded me, and for a minute or two I had all I could do to supply the demand for papers.

"I had sold perhaps 300, when all at once the Confederate artillery along the whole line opened fire. To my excited imagination it seemed as if every gun was aimed at Cemetery gate. I came to the conclusion in a second that that was the poorest kind of a place for a news stand, and gathered up the reins preparatory to taking a hurried departure. But there was an obstacle to the plan.

"Little fire, indeed! It seemed as if there was iron enough being hurled about there to destroy a dozen armies.
"I didn't wait to reply, but grasping all the remaining papers with one hand I gave them a toss to one side, and, as the crowd sprang for them, I wheeled my horse and scurried away at a racing pace, which I did not let up until I<sub>g</sub><sup>1</sup>nd put that hill between myself and the Confederate batteries. That was the last time I ever attempted to do business with a line of battle.

"Did I ever lose much? No. Of course there were times down at the front when cash was not plenty. It was almost pitful then to see the great, big fellows stand around dig-ging their toes into the dirt while more forging their toes into the duri winte more for-tunate comrades secured papers. Pretty soon one of them would sidle up and say: 'I'd like to buy a paper first rate, Doc, if I had any money, but I haven't a cent."

A lettuce salad should be crisp, fresh and cold when served: Miss Parlou tells how to insure this appetizing condition. Break off all the leaves carefully from two small or one large head of lettuce, wash each separately and throw into a pan of ice-water, where they should remain an hour. Put them in a wire basket or coarse towel and shake out all the water. Either cut the leaves with a sharp knife er tear them in large pieces. Mix French dressing with them and serve immediately. For the French dressing take three tablespoonfuls of oil, one of vinegar, one saltspoonful of salt, one salt-spoonful of pepper. Put salt and pepper in a cup, add one tablespoonful of the oil. When thoroughly mixed add the remainder of the oil and the vinegar.

THE MIRROR Perfect and Improved High-Arm Sewing-Machine

For $2 this machine and WERKLY MIRROR, postage paid, for one year.

This machine is the first of its kind ever offered the public at factory prices, and cannot be bought from agents for less than the regular selling price, $55. It is the high-arm pattern, has self-setting needle; cannot be run backward; has automatic cut-off for driving belt, which prevents it from being run backward; thus avoiding all dangers of breaking thread or needles. It is a noiseless, light-running machine, accompanied by an illustrated book of instructions that makes everything so plain and simple that any lady or child can master it. We call it the MIRROR MIGH-ARM SEWING MACHINE, and we warrant it to give full and entire satisfaction in every case, or it may be returned to us within ten days after the subscriber has received the same, if it fails to be as respresented, at our expense, and the money will be refunded.

The above cut represents our HIGH-ARM MIRROR SEWING MACHINE, the very latest improved machine of the high-arm style; a complete embodiment of all the most recent improvements in sewing machine mechanism; a model selected by us after a careful and critical examination and test of the various machines in the market.

Having arranged with the manufacturers to supply us with these machines in large quantities for spot cash at er very near first cost, we can save our subscribers at least $85 on the price of each machine. As this is the first time, sewing machine of this character has been offered to the public at about manufacturer's cost, we feel confident our readers will promptly take advantage of this opportunity to provide themselves with first-class high-arm machines, which cobtained in any other way would cost them almost three times the amount.

We could fill several columns expetiating on the merits of this high-arm machine, but to save the reader's patience we will simply say that it contains all the modern improvements, is strong, simple, durable, light-running and noiseless.

The regular retail price of this machine is $75. Our price with a year's subscription to the Weekly Mirror is only $22.

Knowing the character of the machine and the high grade of material and workmanship entering into its construction, we have no hesitation in agreeing to return the money at once to any subscriber who is not fully satisfied on examination that our high-arm machine is fully equal to our representations, we paying freight on return of the machine.

Caution—Sewing machine agents will tell you, "Beware of Cheap machines." We tell you buy the high-arm machine on trial, and if not satisfactory return it. No agent can sell you its equal for less than $75$. Each part of the machine is fitted with such exactness that no trouble can arise if any part is broken, for a new piece can be supplied with an assurance of a prefere fit.

The High-Arm Machine is carefully packed and shipped by freight from Chicago.

Freight charges are to be paid at point of delivery by the subscriber.

Unhappy Chicago Hotel Men.
[Chicago Mail.]
The hotel-keepers are now the ones to take up the refrain started by the railroad managers over the Interstate Bill. They say their business has fallen off sadly since the men and women who went around on passes have had either to pay their raikroad fares or keep at home. The hotel registers bear out the managers. Japanese fans continue to be utilized in a variety of ways for decorating purposes. periods of Gibbon, he would, on coming to the third page, skip the line and retrace his steps, just as when he first committed the passage to memory.

Often the memory takes the form of remembering dates and past events. One boy never failed to tell correctly the name and address of every confectioner's shop he had visited in London, and could as readily tell the date of every visit. The faculty of number is usually slightly developed in feeble-minded children, while memory is fairly well developed. Improvisation is an occasional faculty. Memory of tune is a very common faculty among the feeble-minded; they readily acquire simple airs, and rarely forget them.

In none of the cases of idiot savants has there been any history of the posession of a similar faculty by the parents or sisters or brothers. In one case a necropsy is reported by Dr. J. L. Down, of London. The boy had a remarkable, indeed perfect, appreciation of past or passing time. There was no difference from an ordinary brain, with the exception that there were two well-marked and distinct soft commissures. Dr. Down's explanation of the phenomenon was that, as every movement of the house was absolutely punctual, he had data from which he could estimate the time by accurate appreciation of its flux.

Every form of mental deviation may be met with in the congenital feeble-minded. They may become the subjects of acute and chronic mania, of acute and chronic melancholia, and of dementia. Occasionally, under the influence of acute mania, the feeble intellect of the youth becomes fanned into a brighter flame. The tacturn may become loquacious; the timid and respectful proud and defiant; and the amiable and tractable, abusive and destructive. Three remarkable instances occurred to Dr. Down of boys who had never been able to speak making use of well-formed sentences during the high febrile state of acute pneumonia or scarletina.

It is of much interest to report all such cases, as they throw great light on the workings of the human mind in heaith.

Two large bus loads went down over the wagon road, while others proceeded by rail to Compton and thence in carriages to Clearwater. Several ladies were of the party. All were and thence in carriages to Clearwater. Several ladies were of the party. All were royally entertained and dined at the Colony restaurant by mine host Harrison, and several hours were then spent most pleasantly in riding over and inspecting the immense tract of land belonging to the colony, with its beautiful little lake, its flowing artestan wells, dairy-works, river and 7000 acres of fertile land.

The party returned to the city before night, delighted with the trip.

very popular as a Sunday resort, and quite a large crowd was in attendance yesterday.

There is a large cage on the grounds, which contains seven or eight monkeys and two raccoons. The eage is surrounded by a wire box, which holds several horned toads. During the afternoon a great many people amused themselves by feeding the animals with peanuts, etc. Some fellow, who had less sense than the little monkeys, reached into the wire box and caught one of the horned toads, which he threw into the monkey's cage. The monkeys at once began torture the poor little thing, and the people who had watched their playful antics, before the human brute threw the toad in, became so thoroughly disgusted that the fellow slunk off, and when Officer Clark looked for him he was nowhere to be found.
One of the coons finally got hold of the toad and put it out of its misery by eating it.

The President's Good Luck for Once

Deserts Him.

PROSPECT HOUSE (N. Y.), May 29.—[By the Associated Press.] The President, on Saturday, had a day of most dismal weather. He made his first fishing excursion, but his usual good luck did not not attend him. He came over from his cabin soon after 8 o'clock in the morning with Mrs. Cleveland, each earing a suit of corduroy. The President's ort sack-coat; over a gray flannel shirt short sack-coat; over a gray flannel shirt gave him a very sportsman-like appearance. Mrs. Cleveland's costume was a close-fitting one, very becoming, and completed with a salior hat. Col. and Mrs. Lamont joined the President and his wife at breakfast, which was eaten in the public dining-room, at Saranac inn, at 11 o'clock. Dave Cronk, the guide, got out the President's new 45-pound pine boat, built by him for the President's use, and with the President went off down the lake. Col. Lamont, also accompanied by a guide, followed in another boat. Both boats returned three hours later. The President and his secretary found the wind unfavorable, and did not try very hard to get any fish. Another trip on the lake was made in the afternoon, with no better results.

made in the afternoon, with no better results.

The party took breakfast at 10 o'clock this morning, the President and his secretary appearing in the camping costumes they wore on Saurday. The ladies went to the little chapel, not far from the hotel, and, in the absence of the clergyman, held a little singing service for an hour. The President expects to have some good sport tomorrow.

In Los Angeles, Divided Into Only 1300 LOTS.

PRICES OF LOTS:

Up to 100 ft. Front, $150; Half-acre Lots, $200; From 1-2 to 1 Acre, $300; From 1 to 4 Acres, $400; 5-acre Lots, $750.

TERMS-One-fifth cash, balance in eight equal monthly payments, without interest. These prices will continue only until June 1, 1887, when they will positively be advanced. All who purchase before that date will have the benefit of the advanced prices.

The entire tract is beautifully situated, with a charming view, pure air and water and perfect drainage. The Ostrich Farm Dummy Railroad runs through the tract, with a five-cent fare guaranteed to and from the center of the city. This road will be completed to the tract July 1, 1887. Pure and abundant water will be piped thro' all the streets.

The title to the property is absolutely perfect. A complete abstract will be kept in the office of the company for the inspection of all purchasers, and a certificate of title will be furnished to each buyer with his deed.

This tract is situated upon the hills, which are rapidly becoming the most desirable residence portion of the city. The soil is a warm, sandy loam, free from frost, being in what is known as the warm belt. The elevation is such that the temperature is more even than in the city.

NOTE-The first purchasers have first choice. Free carriage to the tract every day from the office of the agents, at 9 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Maps and circulars and all information can be had from

It events which led up to and preceded those just harsted are as follows: Early in the current month the Loyal Band of Hope decided to have an excursion. To Santa Monica, and I, as superintendent, proceeded to arrange road superintendent, proceeded to arrange road superintendent's office I was told that I could charter cars at the rate of $30 per car, and it was distinctly stated that I could charter cars at the rate of $30 per car, and it was distinctly stated that I could have been used to precipe for tickets of 60 cents for full and 50 cents for half fare. On this basis it cicket is used and a rate was arranged for tickets of 60 cents for full and 50 cents for half fare. On this basis sidd. This rate was agreed upon in order that the cars need not be crowded uncomfortably. This morning the person in charge at the tor the cars that no more than flifty persons would be permitted in each car, and that when that number had entered the train hands would close and look the doors. I remonstrated, and, there was no necessity for anyone's standing, at any rate not before the train reached the Commercial-street prices are the train bands would close and look the doors. I remonstrated, and for the carefully locked, moved off. The cars were not by any means crowded; there was no necessity for anyone's standing, at any rate not before the train reached the Commercial-street prices are the confort of the passengers is very marked when they run their own exceptions of the train, and whenever a person holding our tickets was found on the train they were obliged to pay train rates—60 cents from Los Aloya, each car contains thirty-two seats, capable of seating at least two persons each. when I charter a car I should suppose it belonged to me for the time, the same as if I rented a house, provided I did not endanger the life or limbs of the passengers. But the Southern Pacific Railroad Company not only breaks its agreement with me by prescribing the number of passengers I shall carry, but this morning, after they had put on one more car than I had ordered, and for which I refused to pay, they demanded pay for switching the car on and off the train!

On the return trip the passengers in two cars circulated and signed the following

THE MAYOR'S COURSE UPHELD BY MR.

ROCHESTER. Los Angeles, May 29.—[To the Editor of The Times.] With reference to the article in today's issue of The Times, entitled "The First-street War,"wherein the action of His Honor the Mayor is, without information or knowledge of the facts, unqualifiedly condemned, I beg to submit for your consideration the following facts, which show that "the recent unseemly which show that "the recent unseemly jangle," "fanfare," etc., was "precipitated"—not by His Honor the Mayor, but the rallway people.

First—You say that Mr. Perris, the chief engineer, "gave his assurances a month ago that no surreptitious or forcille attempt would be made to lay more than the two present tracks across the street; whereas, the first interview had with Mr. Perris by the Mayor was on Tuesday, the 24th inst., when Mr. Perris gave no assurances of any kind, and so far from there being only two tracks across First street, there are now four.

Second—No assurances of any specific character have, as stated, been received from either Vice-President Smith or being by the President Smith or comes the Mayor that he would be here in a week or ten days, and hoped for an amicable arrangement.

Third—On Thursday last the assistant engineer showed His Honor the Mayor a diagram of the tracks to be laid across First street, and eight were provided for.

Fourth—The same morning the Mayor, accompanied by the president of the City Council, called on Mr. Perris, who then, for the first time (and this was also the first assurance of the kind from any quarter), assured those officers that no more switches would be laid across First street pending the arrival of Vice-President Smith.

Parties holding excursion tickets attempting to enter the cars at the Commercial-street Depot were denied admittance, and some of those who held the tickets of the excursion and chanced to get into the wrong cars were not only refused admission to the chartered cars, but were obliged to pay their full fare or be put off the train.

We have pressed whitman's Hay Fress" this season, in 18x2 press, in about two months' running. We have pressed white two months' running. We have pressed white the following the first press would do. In grain hay the bales run from 180 o 280 pounds. We have pressed 190 pounds with ten feeds, which the Dederick press cannot do, because their feed-box is not so large as ours. The bales made by our Whitman press are much smoother and more sightly than bales made by the Dederick press. We have pressed twenty bales an hour, averaging 150 pounds to the bale, in wild oats hay. We pressed then ty bales an hour, averaging 150 pounds to the bale, in wild oats hay. We pressed thay this year upon the same ranch where the Dederick Over Circle press baled last year. Their bales weighed 25 to 125 pounds: our bales weighed 25 to 180 pounds. State has been addressed in regard to it, and Congress has been asked to pass restrictive laws.

Thus far 274,399 Chinese have come to us. One-half of these have voluntarily returned to China; not one-half of 1 per cent. of the remannt have come to us as paupers. We have shut the west door and bolted it, so that we are safe from that quarter.

I san not here to criticise this act being wrong or right, but this I dare say: To close a scuttle in the roof to keep out an offending sparrow, and leave open and unguarded the broad front door to a hungry and malignant mob, is not, in my estimation, good statesmanship. [Applause.] That helps amazingly. [Renewed applause.] Germany, overrun with a hungry mob that threatened her very existence, set the example of transporting paupers to America. Other continental countries seized upon Bismarck's cunning solution of the vexing problem and practiced it with joyful zeal; and now our British mother is accused, with good proofs back of the accusation, of thus imposing upon and imperiling her children on this side of the sea.

Stand with me any day on the docks at the Battery and see the hundreds who swarm out of ships from Hamburg, Genoa. Dublin and Liverpool—swarm without food or shelter, and with not sufficient money to buy a meal or purchase a lodging, and you may see them taken directly from the ship to the almshouse! They are paupers, and they are low and degraded, socially and morally. They do not understand our institutions, and cannot appreciate them. They do not know our laws, and therefore cannot observe them. Many of them are likely to live off the fruits of criminality on this side the water, as they have on the other.

Now, let me say, and say with what embasis I can: All immigrants are not such likely to live off the fruits of criminality on this side the water, as they have on the other.

Now, let me say, and say with what emphasis I can; All immigrants are not such people as I have been describing. There are many conspicuous exceptions in all the pursuits of life. Europe has sent us men good and true, brain and brawn, artisans, many who have distinguished themselves as victorious generals, herote soldiers, astute and conscientious statesmen, successful innanciers and men of affairs, and philanthropists who would adorn the annals of any age or country. Many of these have entered into our commercial life, and have added to its wealth; have gone into our social life and elevated it; have gone into political life and have ennobled it; have gone in and out among us winning not only our respect but our sincerest appreciation and esteem. All honor to our Anglo-American, German-American and Irish-American citizens, and others, who have entered into the warp and woof of our political, commercial, social and religious life, and are helping us to accomplish the great destiny we believe Providence has decreed we should accomplish. But those I eulogize are in the minority. The majority do not deserve such words; it would be blasphemous to utter them.

It is to me an interesting study to follow these nine millions of foreigners who are among us and see what their business is—in what they invest their money—at what they work.

First—They wantacture our run.

among us and see what their business is—in what they invest their money—at what they work.

First—They manufacture our rum.
According to the census reports of 1880, and it scarcely touches the fringe of the truth, there were in the United States 3115 establishments where rum is manufactured, the capital investment, 33,689 men are employed as day or month laborers to carry on the work, to whom are paid $2,500,000 annually, and the net value of their annual production is $144,000,000. Adding the money invested, the wages of workers and the yearly yield we find that it amounts to the enormous sum of $277,000,000. Estimating that these establishments are owned by 5000 men there are almost 40,000 men employed in the manufacture of rum. Add to this the fact of the mmense amount of illicit distilling done and it is fair to say that at least 50,000 men are employed, of whom 40,000 are foreigners.

Second—They operate our saloons forus.
I say "our" for they are ours. We invest in them, receive blood-money from them, and hold them under the sanction of our laws. There are very few purely American saloon-owners. It is generally felt that when an American goes into the saloon business he has gotten pretty low. And if Americans felt that way, the business must be indeed disreputable. But take any business or city directory and read the list of saloon-owners. You cannot pronouncesble. Go along the streets and notice the signs. I have gone for blocks in St. Louis, Ohicago, New York and Philadelphia without finding a single American saloon proprietor. All foreigners; or, if owned by Amerleans, the proprietors were ashamed to put their names on the signs. Attend a salooning papers the list of arrivals. Nearly all foreigners. Glance over the multilished pro-especially if it be labeled "enteprise" or "progress." Most nations are conservative. We are radical. Thus the temptation is almost irresistible to raise a clamor for some new reform, especially if it promises to carry the people with it. Hence you may see great political parties change front with an alacrity that speaks volumes on the dishonesty of politicians and the perils of republics. You may see great men and great journals mouthing mealy words about gross class iniquities, because they are class iniquities and the perpetrators are likely to vote solid. So far has this iniquity gone that to be a professed politician is to be a disgrace. Even the name has become a stench in the nostrils of good men. Nor can I see good reason for this. I cannot see why a man who gives his time and talent to the political interest of his country should be any meaner, in fact or fame, than the philospher or the historian. There is no reasons why legislators should ignore conscience and right, for intrigue is not statesmanship. Those thrones stand most firm that are built on right and not on power, and those parties stand most secure which are built on right and not on power, and those parties stand most secure which are built on of on policy but on justice, and a lease of power bought by moral corruption costs more than it is worth. The day of retribution is sure to come to the wrong-doer, be it man, party or nation—so much of sin so much of ruin is the formula of history. So let no man commit an injustice and hope to prevail. While Napoleon did right he was strong in the people's faith. Thrones reeled and fell before him, and he had crowns and empires to give away; but he grew giddy with his height; justice was banished from his upstart court; the snow of Russia cut off his armies, but it was his own injustice that brought Napoleon to the ground. Self-shorn of his great strength, the ablest monarch of history? Shall we still dream that intrigue can succeed, and that it is safe "to frame mischief by a law?" Have we been told greater complexity to intrigue and furnishes greater help to infamy. So I put again my plea for conscience.

But the practical question comes. When shall we get it? Something might be done to improve the present generation. Here I wish to suggest the mission of American homes. The foundation of society is the home—the family—and it should be the duty of every home to educate the children for citizenship, by precept and by example. It must inculcate every virtue, especially conscience, toward legislative authority and right law. It is a very easy thing to mistake the nature of liberty, and freedom may degenerate into licentiousness and anarchy, and the ambition of the many become as fatal as the tyranny of one. Under pretense of equality, proper deference to superior understanding may be refused, and reverence for law be engulfed in a false and ruinous notion of personal right. The American home must guard the nation at these points of peril. It must make an educated conscience and true notions of liberty the mental furniture of every American child. They must be taught to yield hearty and entire obedience to parental authority; to reverence age, and to observe habits of personal regularity—to understand and respect the rights of their fellows; and, above all, to have conscience toward God; to reverence the Supreme Law, on which all other law depends.

supreme Law, on which all other law depends.

III.

We are confronted by a growing skepticism, and I plead for a pure religion. I plead for this because it is the central truth of the text, and because it involves all I have said, and more. Religion stimulates intellect; is the chief promoter of education. The old taunt that "Religion is like an owl, in that it flourishes best in the dark," received a fatal rebuke from fact long since. Religion educates conscience; it inculcates all holy charities, as it does all pure moralities. It is full of pure maxims, which, if they were all observed and universally obeyed, would lead every man to respect the rights of his neighbor; would give peace through all the earth, would make boits on our doors as unnecessary as laws would be on our statute-books; enthrone absolute right in every conscience, so that no parent would be exacting, and no child ungrateful; no governor would be a tyrant and no subject turbulent; no monarchy would run into despotism, and no Republic into anarchy. Appetite would yield to reason, prejudice to sound judgment, and conscience would not have a price. Laws would not be made or unmade at the call of a party, nor would men of genius dare the doom of infamy for the offer of a place.

Second—Religion makes a public impression of accountability to God. Nations cannot be punished at the final judgment, and will cover Lazarus with glory, and Dives with shame and contempt; will dam Caligula and exalt Paul; will cast down lifered and enthrone Christ; but Rome, France and the United States will not be there. God may wait ten thousand spiritual education of maistine.

It, too, will pass away and what shall succeed it? The Word of God in the fullness of its meaning. And what is the Word of God? Not the chronicles of the Hebrews, nor the writings and records of the ancients. The Word of God is the power of God in the human soul. The world of matter has and is undergoing numerous and wonderful changes. If the ancient philosophers could arise from the confines of their tombs, and look upon the world of today, they would see miracles in the locomotive, the telegraph, the telephone, and thousands of other modern inventions. Yet the powers, now so utilized, have always existed. Water has always generated steam; the clouds have sent forth their lightnings from the earliest days of creation; but these powers have never before been searched out and utilized.

So it is in the moral world, a continual state of discovery and development. Moses propounded many excellent moral laws for the government of his people, but it was the mission of Jesus Christ to broaden, develop and apply these laws to the whole human race.

The Jewish and Christian systems of religion are the developements of the inner lives of the people. The history of the Jews was a hard one and it was through slavery and trials in the wilderness that they were led forward and educated into the belief that they were the chosen people of God, but they triumphed in the end.

Jesus taught the great brotherhood of man. His soul overflowed with this great idea. It was caught by his disciples and has spread through many climes and ages to be the religion of a great people and to be beneficent and far-reaching in its practical application, by helping the weak, caring for the blind and afflicted and building up the charities of the civilized world.

Stephenson did not originate anything, but his life marks an epoch in the development of a mighty power. So in the moral and spiritual world. The Jews led a hard and spiritual world. The Jews led a hard and persecuted life, but they looked forward to the HONOR THY PARENTS.

Sermon by the Rev. P. W. Dorsey at the First Baptist Church. At the First Baptist Church, corner of Fort and Sixth streets, yesterday morning, Rev. P. W. Dorsey delivered a sermon from the following text: Exodus, xx, 12: "Honor thy father and thy mother that thy days may be long in the land the Lord, thy God, giveth thee.'

Christ laid great stress on the keeping of His Word. This is one of the command-ments that should be kept. It is binding on ments that should be kept. It is binding on all men, both young and old. We live in a disobedient age. We are in danger of transposing this commandment. We are in danger of forgetting rightful authority. This commandment combines two things—respect and obedience. We should have respect and reverence for our parents. The speaker illustrated respect and love for a parent in the conduct of Joseph when he invited his father into Egypt. Many of our modern young people, in the great advantages they enjoy, forget the respect due their parents. Loving obedience is due to all parents. In the government of the fammodern young people, in the great advantages they enjoy, forget the respect due their parents. Loving obedience is due to all parents. In the government of the family the father is recognized as the head, and should be obeyed. Obedience should be prompt. Obedience should be cheerful and unreserved. Some children obey with evasion, only doing just enough of what they are commanded to be excused from punishment.

Let us look at the promise connected with this commandment, 'That thy days may be long in the land that the Lord, thy God, giveth thee.' This promise for keeping the commandment is the only one that can be found in the Bible, and so is referred to by Apostle Paul as the command with promise. The fulfillment of this promise is apparent on every hand. The obedient child is industrious, and will, of course, succeed in life. Obedient children live good lives, and length of days is sure to follow. The sorrowful result that follows disobedience is equally apparent. You can see anywhere the disobedient son or daughter, who are suffering fearfully for their disobedience. But the most know is due to father and mother, because they are father and mother. They brought you into existence; they have reared you; they have laid the foundation for the success you have achieved or will achieve. Are there any names sweeter than "mother?" Think of the affection that both father and mother lavish on their children. There is no sacrifice they will not make to secure the further happiness of their darlings. The care that they have taken of you in your childhood can never be repaid. Did you ever notice the great pride that father and mother take in the success of their children? How proud they are of any successful achievement. I rennember that when I gave an exhibition at the close of my first school term as a teacher, my father took more pride in my success than I did myself. The love of a parent is beyond any other human affection.

scoffers. For I tell you today, who are among the toilers, the only power that can harmonize the differences between the hand that resists; that can settle the question of labor and capital and make brothers of us all is the religion of Christ, He, being high, came down to earth and humbled Himself that we might be exalted. It is only this principle of Christian sacrifice that shall make us equal under the laws of God.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

This has been demonstrated in thousands of cases treated by DR. WILLIAMS,

With his new system of Medicated Inhalations combined with proper constitutional remedies for the liver, stomach, blood, etc.

Probably no system of practice ever adopted has been so universally successful as that introduced by Dr. Williams for the cure of Catarri, Throat Diseases, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption. CATARRH.

CATARRH.

Catarrh is often regarded by the patient as a cold in the head, and the often expresses his astonishment at his remarkable tendency to contract a fresh cold; indeed, he declares that some cold the contract a fresh cold; indeed, he declares that some cold the contract a fresh cold; indeed, he declares that some cold that some cold; indeed, he declares that some cold that some cold that some cold that the cold always seems to a set the cold always seems to set the in the head and throat.

At times many of the symptoms of Catarrh may seem to abate, and the patient is led to hope that the disease is about to wear off; but snother class of symptoms soon appears, and he learns to his horror that instead of recovery from the disease, it is somewhat changed in its character and has extended to the throat. A sense of weariness is sometimes felt in reading, speaking er singing, hoarseness at times occurs, a sensation of dryness is felt in the throat, or it appears that some foreign substance, as, for instance, a hair, obstructed the throat; there becomes a sense of languor and fatigue, the breath lessens upon a little exertion, a shert, hacking cough, a poculiar sound in clearing the throat, a feeling as though there was not room enough in the chest to breathe; these and other symptoms occur after the disease has made considerable progress. Then it is a time when consumption is about to begin its dreadful work. Up to this time the progress of the disease may have been slow, and the patient may, in word, and trusts that he will "by-and-by" recover. But this delusion is the grand error which has peopled our cometries with consumptive forms, as all froms of catarrh end finally in consumption.
